How To Find Us

Getting here

Appleton le Moors is at the southern end of the North York Moors national park and because of its location it is easy to quickly get to supermarkets and other local shops. But at the same time you are already in the park, so if you head north, you are truly in God's country.

From the south – by car

Appleton le Moors is at the southern end of the North York Moors national park and because of its location it is easy to quickly get to supermarkets and other local shops. But at the same time you are already in the park, so if you head north, you are truly in God's country.

From the north – by car

The roads in the park can be quite narrow and steep, but you can reach the village from Rosedale Abbey or Farndale. In both cases follow the road towards Lastingham, then head south towards Appleton le Moors. Drive down the village, past the pub on the right (Moors Inn). Follow the road round the tight right handed corner and turn in right over the cattle grid. The same instructions apply as from the south... park up and relax. roam around and have little road sense, especially in the spring time when the lambs are born. After a couple of miles you come in to the village turn left over the cattle grid just before the left hand bend, park up and relax.

Train stations

Fast train connections from London to York, with connections up to Malton. We are happy to link you in with local taxi firms to arrange a stress free transfer to Appleton from the train station.
